Title: Incidence of traumatic osteoarthritis involving combat related injuries: Investigation of risk and protective factors

Purpose: 1) To examine risk and protective factors (risk factors will include increased age, race, gender and rank whereas protective factors will include selected service responsibilities, such a military occupational specialty (MOS)) toward outcomes such as total healthcare utilization charges (>75% of distribution), discharge status (medical or normal), and return to duty rates in those who have experienced active duty/combat related trauma resulting in a diagnosis of PTOA in the hip or knee: To determine whether the type of combat related trauma is associated with poorer outcomes (total healthcare utilization charges, discharge status (medical or normal), and return to duty rates) in those who have experienced active duty/combat related trauma resulting in a diagnosis of PTOA in the hip or knee; and To examine the influence of non-rehabilitative care intensity (use of surgery [all OA-related forms] and imaging intensity) and appropriateness, timeliness, and intensity of rehabilitation services (conservative care) on outcomes such as total healthcare utilization charges, discharge status (medical or normal), and return to duty rates in those who have experienced active duty/combat related trauma resulting in a diagnosis of PTOA in the hip or knee.
